REPAIRED AT SEA

SCHOONER MISSING.

Fears are entertained for the schooner Freddle Hencken, Captain Henderson, New York to Savannah, deeply londed with salt. She would have been nearly off Hatteras when the storm reached there and would have a hard time of it.

LIGHTSHIP WRECKED.

Word was received yesterday through Observer Gray, of the Weather Bureau, from Haiteras, that Diamond Shoals Lightship, No. 69, had been wrenched adrift by the storm and blown into Haiteras bight, to the north of the heok. Nothing was said of her condition or whether she was ashore or affoat, and much uneasiness is felt for her.

This is all to date, but it is feared that when the roll is called of ships en voyage on the coast a number of vessels well known in Norfolk may be added to the list of those already known to be filling the occan grave-yard.
